

“History and Present of Global Trade Routes”
by Roger M. Buergel

Dear shipping professionals,

We are delighted to announce our next event in collaboration with Johann Jacobs Museum.

Built on the legacy of the coffee empire founded by Johann Jacobs, the museum has recently re-focused under the leadership of director Roger M. Buergel. It is dedicated to exploring the complex history of global trade routes of objects and key commodities. Roger will talk about the museum’s general theme and also give us a tour of the current exhibition: Charles Lim Yi Yong’s “Stealing the Trapeze” which touches on topics ranging from sailing and boat types to Singapore and the English East India Company.

After this the Museum will host us for networking drinks in their main hall and library. Weather permitting we may extend out to their lovely garden facing Seefeldquai and Lake Zurich.

Wallem Group, the Hong Kong headquartered, but global provider of integrated maritime solutions for over 110 years, is sponsoring food for the evening.

Please join us for this unique opportunity to mix shipping business with a conceptual take on global trade.

Stealing the Trapeze

-or a history of Singapore, told from a sailor's viewpoint

(Exhibition 18 May – 20 August 2017)

Founded by a British colonial officer in the early 19th century, the city-state Singapore has always been a hub for migratory flows from Malaysia, India and China and remains a dynamic, constantly-growing organism (and financial center) to this day. Charles Lim Yi Yong, one of Asia's best-known artists and former Olympic sailor, dissects the historical layers of this organism using the example of trapeze sailing – a local technique that British sports sailors copied during the colonial period and claimed as their own invention in Europe. At the same time, Lim Yi Yong takes a look at Singapore's current reality as a global center that, in the course of land reclamation, continues to expand its territory piece by piece into the sea.

Charles Lim Yi Yong (b. 1973) officially represented Singapore at the 56th Venice Biennale (2015) and participated with the collective tsunami.net, which he co-founded, in documenta 11 (2002).
