New ConTex-Commentary - issued:	16.08.18
The summerholiday season in Europe is coming to an end and the expectations for a halt of the latest negative trend will hopefully come up shortly. Last week the New ConTex dropped another 5 points to finally 498 at the end of the week. Having said that it is still 30% better then a year ago. All numbers are going sideways with only a slight negative tendency. Only the 1100 TEU size for 12 months is evaluated with 1,5% (usd 116) down from the week before and all the other numbers are maximum 1% down in that period. Looking at the year-on-year development it must be highlighted that the panamax size of 4250 teu is remaining very firm compared to all the other vessels sizes of the New ConTex. Due to comparably higher activity in that segment this could even continue in the next couple of weeks unless we see a cascading effect as already mentioned in our commentary last week.
